

Feeding Central African Republic

Armed conflict and political instability in the Central African Republic (CAR) has displaced over 470,000 people and caused more than 453,000 refugees to flee to neighboring countries since December 2013. Due to heightened insecurities over the past year, USAID's Office of Food for Peace (FFP) supported the UN World Food Program (WFP) to expand its refugee food assistance operations in Cameroon, Chad, Democratic Republic of Congo, and Republic of Congo. FFP supports WFP in a variety of activities to decrease food insecurity and malnutrition among refugees from CAR, including general food distributions, cash transfers, food vouchers, and targeted and supplementary feeding for pregnant and lactating women and young children.
